First, in Japan a 250cc motorcycle is cheaper and more economic than "over 250cc class", and the Estrella's shape; new classic style? is very welcomed to limited? people in Japan. Secondly for the simple and basic structure: single cylinder, enough after market parts, it's easier to customize. It may be a small market and it's not so expected for manufactures, but Estrella will alive I think. I don't know by when kawasaki motor continue to produce as it is. It's a very rare and long life bike in Japan. I think it may be developed to "Twin cylinders and twin silencers" for example. I'm sure Kawasaki could develop the fine "Twin Estrella". How do you think?

Already 2 Japanese and 1 Kiwi writer! Great! 😊

Hi Michito / Estrellitan!
 Could you send the provider a short email in Japanese and ask him if English communication / comments really aren't welcome? Well; it says "Free BBS" ...
 Maybe it was only a technical problem? Our forum works well at the moment, but we had some major problems some weeks ago too here!
 I have heard that it generally is VERY difficult to get into contact with Japanese persons - if you don't speak Japanese. So, I'm very happy that we got into contact with Rodorinx and you! 🍀

Best regards
 Andreas

Click onto »antworten« to answer a message and fill in your message text. Add emotions, images or quotations. Texts in bold, italic or colour have to be in these brackets too. If you post images or other effects, maybe use the »Voransicht« (preview) button first to see if everything looks like you want it to be. Press »speichern« (send) then.
